

A 2000

377

A Measure of Freedom

IAN CARTER

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

CONTENTS

Introduction	1
--------------	---

PART I: JUSTICE AND OVERALL FREEDOM

1. The Concept of Overall Freedom	11
1.1 Specific Freedoms and Overall Freedom	12
1.2 Defining Freedom	14
1.3 Intuitions and Common-Sense Comparisons	17
1.4 The Specific-Freedom Thesis	18
1.5 Is There Such a Thing as Overall Freedom?	23
2. The Value of Freedom	31
2.1 The Idea of Non-Specific Value	32
2.2 Unconditional Value	37
2.3 Intrinsic Value	41
2.4 Instrumental Value	43
2.5 Constitutive Value	54
2.6 Non-Specific Value and Non-Specific Disvalue	61
2.7 Degrees of Overall Freedom to Do Valuable Things	63
2.8 Extreme Differences in Specific Value	64
2.9 Summary	66
2.10 Definitions	66
3. The Distribution of Freedom	68
3.1 From Non-Specific Value to Freedom-Based Theories of Justice	68
3.2 From Non-Specific Value to Distributive Principles	74
3.3 From Distributive Principles to Powers of Measurement	86
3.4 Conceptual and Realistic Theory, Ideal and Non-Ideal Theory	92
3.5 Summary	93
4. Reflective Equilibrium	95
4.1 Measurement and Definition	95
4.2 Powers and Demands	100
4.3 Freedom and Justice	104
4.4 Swanton on Overall Freedom and Reflective Equilibrium	108
4.5 Further Remarks on Reflective Equilibrium	111
4.6 Reflective Equilibrium and Consensus	114

PART II: VALUE-BASED FREEDOM

5. The Value-Based Approach	119
5.1 Why the Value-Based Approach? An Argument from Common-Sense Comparisons	121
5.2 The Value-Based Approach and the Specific-Freedom Thesis	124
5.3 The Rhetorical Interpretation: Some Counter-Arguments from Common-Sense Comparisons	130
5.4 The Hybrid Approach	135
5.5 The Value-Based Approach versus the Empirical Approach	140
5.6 Evaluation and Measurement	144
5.7 Summary	146
6. Self-Mastery	148
6.1 The Idea of Self-Mastery	149
6.2 Self-Mastery and the Specific-Freedom Thesis	153
6.3 The Rhetorical Interpretation: Some Further Counter-Arguments from Common-Sense Comparisons	156
6.4 The Priority of Empirical Freedom	163
6.5 Summary	165

PART III: EMPIRICAL FREEDOM

7. Individual Freedom: Actions	169
7.1 Steiner's Formula	171
7.2 The Problem of Indefinite Numbers of Descriptions	175
7.3 The Problem of Indefinite Subdivision	183
7.4 The Problem of Indefinite Causal Chains	188
7.5 Probability	189
7.6 Different Ways of Doing the Same Thing	191
7.7 Act-Trees and Act-Roots	196
7.8 The Variety of Options	198
7.9 Under- and Over-Represented Actions	204
7.10 Dealing with the Remaining Counter-Examples	208
7.11 Physicalist, Empiricist, and Kantian Conceptions of Action	211
8. Individual Freedom: Constraints	219
8.1 Constraint Variables and their Sources	220
8.2 Threats and Offers	224
8.3 Difficulty	232
8.4 Probability Again	233

Contents

xi

8.5 'Socialist' versus 'Libertarian' Conceptions of Constraints	234
8.6 'Liberal' versus 'Republican' Conceptions of Constraints	237
8.7 Conclusion	245
9. Group Freedom	246
9.1 Group Freedom and Collective Freedom	248
9.2 The Collective Freedom and Individual Unfreedom of Proletarians	253
9.3 The Truth in Claims about Collective Freedom and Unfreedom	256
9.4 Group Freedom and Communal Property	258
9.5 Conclusion	267
10. Indicators of Freedom	269
10.1 The Need for a Realistic Freedom Metric	269
10.2 The Freedom-Type Metric	273
10.3 The Exchange-Value Metric	282
10.4 Combining the Two Metrics	285
10.5 Conclusion	287
Conclusion	288
Bibliography	293
Index	303