

A 2000
3908

AMSTERDAM: THE MAKING OF A TREATY

Franklin Dehousse
W

Contents

Biographical Notes	ix
Editorial Board	x
Amsterdam: The Making of a Treaty	xi
Part I – The Making of the Treaty
1. The Process	3
The bizarre constitution of the agenda	3
The weak preparation of the negotiation	4
The bizarre organisation of the negotiation	7
The Reflection Group
The Personal Representative's Group
The Ministers of Foreign Affairs
The European Council and the Commission
The limited number of propositions	10
The primacy of the English language	10
The increased transparency	11
The evolution of the negotiations	13
2. The Form of the Treaty	15
The increased fragmentation of the Union	15
The use and abuse of protocols and declarations	16
A greater declaratory nature	17
Greater precision	18
The complexity of the treaty	18

3. Some Possible Reforms of the Process	20
More democracy	20
More communitarisation	22
4. The Place of the 1996 IGC in the Process of European Integration	23
The numerous causes of a limited result	23
The objectives were not clear
Many governments fear the consequences of the next enlargements
Many governments are unpopular
Governments wanted to concentrate on the single currency
The first problem in Amsterdam was the lack of political will
A treaty of transition	28
A disconnected agenda
The fear of enlargement
The signs of a regional problem
The growing politicisation of the process
The absence of a new political project
Part II – The Treaty of Amsterdam
5. A Rebalancing of the Economic and Social Model of Europe	35
General overview	35
The employment policy	37
A new goal: an adaptable labour market
The coordination of the national employment policies
The use of incentive measures
The establishment of an employment committee
The restrictions to free competition	40

The protection of services of general interest
 The special protection of public broadcasting

6. The Great Disorder in the Field of Internal Security	44
General overview	44
The reform of the third pillar	46
Communitarisation of the fight against customs and budgetary fraud
The new legal instruments of the third pillar
The development of Europol's functions
The extension of the role of the Court of Justice
More consultation for the European Parliament
More right of initiative for the Commission
The integration of Schengen in the framework	51
The integration of existing measures
The development of Schengen measures
Political asylum between Member States is maintained	53
7. Some Small Steps in External Relations	56
8. The Incomplete Symphony of the Institutional Reforms	58
An indirect strengthening of the Commission	58
A strengthening of the president when nominating the commissioners
A frail strengthening of the president in the management of the commission
The decision-making mechanisms in the Council are not changed	60

A weak extension of the qualified majority voting
No changes in the weighting of the votes
The beginning of a closer cooperation system	61
The next institutional reforms	63
9. Conclusion	64