AQUINAS ON HUMAN SELF-KNOWLEDGE

Self-knowledge is commonly thought to have become a topic of serious philosophical inquiry during the early modern period. Already in the thirteenth century, however, the medieval thinker Thomas Aquinas developed a sophisticated theory of self-knowledge, which Therese Scarpelli Cory presents as a project of reconciling the conflicting phenomena of self-opacity and privileged self-access. Situating Aquinas's theory within the mid-thirteenth-century debate and his own maturing thought on human nature, Cory investigates the kinds of self-knowledge that Aquinas describes and the questions they raise. She shows that to a degree remarkable in a medieval thinker, self-knowledge turns out to be central to Aquinas's account of cognition and personhood, and that his theory provides tools for considering intentionality, reflexivity, and selfhood. Her engaging account of this neglected aspect of medieval philosophy will interest readers studying Aquinas and the history of medieval philosophy more generally.

THERESE SCARPELLI CORY is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Seattle University.

nec ego ipse capio totum, quod sum.
Ergo animus ad habendum se ipsum angustus est:
ut ubi sit quod sui non capit?
Numquid extra ipsum ac non in ipso?
Quomodo ergo non capit?
Multa mihi super hoc oboritur admiratio, stupor apprehendit.
Et eunt homines mirari alta montium,
et ingentes fluctus maris,
et latissimos lapsus fluminum,
et Oceani ambitum,
et gyros siderum,
et relinquunt se ipsos.

St. Augustine, Confessiones

Acknowledgments

On the long road to completing this project, I have been fortunate to have had the philosophical guidance and companionship of very many wise and kind people. This book began its journey as a master's thesis (2007) and then a doctoral dissertation (2009) under the direction of Msgr. John F. Wippel at The Catholic University of America, to whom I owe an immense debt of gratitude for his unfailing patience, wisdom, and generosity. Fr. Mark Henninger, SJ, of Georgetown University, provided an invaluable opportunity to rework and expand the project during a postdoctoral fellowship year at the Georgetown University Center for Medieval Philosophy, 2009–10. I have benefited at various stages of the project from the incisive comments and critique of Kevin White, Greg Doolan, Tim Noone, Bernd Goehring, J.T. Paasch, Susan Brower-Toland, Daniel De Haan, Brian Carl, and two reviewers. In particular, I owe many thanks to my husband David for his enthusiasm for puzzling over problems in medieval philosophy at any time of the day or night – not to mention his stoicism in reading and commenting on a seemingly endless series of drafts.

The research and writing of this project was generously funded by Mrs. Catharine Ryan and the Georgetown University Martin Center for Medieval Philosophy, whose support I gratefully acknowledge. And last but certainly not least, I recall with grateful affection the guidance and support of the late Dean of the School of Philosophy at The Catholic University of America, Fr. Kurt Pritzl, OP.

Abbreviations

Titles of works in Latin

Abbreviations given are for the works of Aquinas, unless otherwise stated. Since many medieval authors wrote a commentary on the Sentences, I use the same abbreviation for all such commentaries (Sent).

In references to these works, internal divisions such as books, distinctions, questions, and articles, or lectiones or chapters, are given in Arabic numerals, separated by periods, without preceding designations unless these are necessary for clarity (e.g., Sent 1.3.4.5). Book numbers of commentaries and the parts of the Summa theologiae, however, are given in Roman numerals according to standard practice.
