

Energy Efficiency and Sustainable Consumption

The Rebound Effect

Edited by

Horace Herring
*Visiting Research Fellow,
Energy and Environment Research Unit
The Open University, UK*

and

Steve Sorrell
Senior Fellow, Sussex Energy Group University of Sussex, UK

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

List of Figures	vii
List of Tables	viii
List of Boxes	ix
Series Editor Preface	x
Notes on the Contributors	xii
1 Introduction	1
Steve Sorrell and Horace Herring
Part I Direct Rebound Effects	21
2 The Evidence for Direct Rebound Effects	23
Steve Sorrell
3 Fuel Efficiency and Automobile Travel in Germany: Don't Forget the Rebound Effect!	47
Manuel Frondel, Jörg Peters and Colin Vance
Part II Economy-wide Rebound Effects	67
4 Modelling the Economy-wide Rebound Effect	69
Grant Allan, Michelle Gilmartin, Peter G. McGregor, J. Kim Swales and Karen Turner
5 Specifying Technology for Analysing Rebound	99
Harry D. Saunders
6 Energy Efficiency and Economic Growth: the 'Rebound Effect' as a Driver	119
Robert U. Ayres and Benjamin Warr
7 Exploring Jevons' Paradox	136
Steve Sorrell

Part III Rebound Effects and Sustainable Consumption	165
8 Time-use Rebound Effects: an Activity-based View of Consumption Mikko Jalas	167
9 Rebound and Rational Public Policy-Making Roger Levett	185
10 Avoiding Rebound through a Steady-state Economy Jørgen S. Nørgård	204
11 Sufficiency and the Rebound Effect Horace Herring	224
12 Conclusion Steve Sorrell and Horace Herring	240
Index	262