

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC LAW WITH A HUMAN FACE

Edited by

Friedl Weiss

*Professor of Law of International Organisations,
Europa Instituut,
University of Amsterdam,
Amsterdam, The Netherlands*

Erik Denters

*Lecturer in International Law,
Vrije Universiteit,
Amsterdam, The Netherlands*

and

Paul de Waart

*Former Professor of International Law,
Vrije Universiteit,
Amsterdam, The Netherlands*

KLUWER LAW INTERNATIONAL
THE HAGUE / DORDRECHT / LONDON

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface (Judge G.C. Weeramantry)	v
Table of Contents	vii
List of Authors	xxi
Acknowledgements	xxv
List of Abbreviations	xxvii

International economic law with a human face: An introductory review (Paul de Waart & Friedl Weiss)	1
1. About the book	1
2. International social critique of state practice	1
3. The structure of 'economic law with a human face'	5
3.1 Towards a new human and economic order	5
3.2 Trade, environmental protection and resource management	6
3.3 Investment and finance	7
4. Globalization of good governance and civil society	8
4.1 Definition of (good) governance	8
4.2 Definition of civil society	9
5. Globalization for the benefit of all	10

PART I TOWARDS A NEW HUMAN AND ECONOMIC ORDER

Chapter 1: The legal context: concepts, principles, standards and institutions (M.C.W. Pinto)	13
1. Problems of environmental discipline	13
2. Sustainable development	16
3. General principles	17
4. Standards and institutions	23
5. Financing performance of developing-country undertakings	28
6. Tasks ahead	29
Chapter 2: The erosion of state authority and its implications for equitable development (Oscar Schachter)	31
1. Declining state authority	31

2.	The global market economy and its effect on state authority	32
3.	The impact of international economic regimes	34
4.	Transnational civil society	36
5.	Micro-nationalism and localism	38
6.	Failed states and illegal regimes	40
7.	Is the state withering away? Should it?	43
Chapter 3: Globalization and the future role of sovereign states		45
(Peter Malanczuk)
1.	Historical perspective	45
2.	The meaning of 'globalization'	49
3.	The role of states in the global economy	53
4.	Some idealistic views on the effects of globalization on the role of the state	61
5.	Conclusions	64
Chapter 4: Emerging state practice of democratic government with special reference to the Commonwealth and South Asia (Kamal Hossain)		67
1.	Introduction	67
2.	Promotion of democracy, good governance and human rights	67
2.1	The Harare Declaration: the case for updating or amplification	68
2.2	The Harare declaration: implementation mechanisms	70
2.2.1	Support of processes and institutions	70
2.2.2	Response to violations	71
2.2.3	Implementation of measures	71
3.	The 'Gandhi' Agenda for the worldwide promotion of human rights	72
3.1	Promoting participatory decision-making	72
3.2	Securing free elections	73
3.3	Interlinking peace, security and development	74
3.4	Upholding freedom of information	75
4.	The emerging right to democratic government	76
Chapter 5: Internationally recognized labour standards and trade (Friedl Weiss)		79
1.	Introduction and Background	79

1.1	Preliminary remarks	79
1.2	Themes and issues	79
1.3	Terminology : 'International' v. 'Fair' labour standards	81
1.4	From Marrakesh to Singapore	81
2.	Evolution of the link between trade and labour rights	83
2.1.	From integrated to segregated standards and back	83
2.2	The impact of globalization	84
2.3	The 'link': ILO, GATT and unilateral state practice	86
3.	The changing framework	88
3.1	Integrating separate concerns	88
3.2	Historical antecedents	89
3.2.1	From linkage to 'social policy conditionality'	89
3.2.2	The ITO connection	91
3.3	Labour in GATT practice	92
3.3.1	Proposals by contracting parties	92
3.3.2	U.S.request for a Working Party	93
3.3.3	Deliberations in GATT Councils	94
4.	GATT Panel Practice	96
4.1	Adjudication without law?	96
4.2	Protection of domestic labour	97
4.3	Protection of foreign labour	100
4.3.1	Potential legal bases in GATT/WTO law	100
4.3.2	Implications of the 'Gasoline' Rulings	100
5.	Standard Setting	102
5.1	Merits and demerits of the incorporation of standards	102
5.2	Selection of standards for a 'Social Clause'	103
5.3	Supervision of compliance	105
6.	Concluding remarks	106
 Chapter 6: Quality of life at the mercy of WTO Panels: GATT's		109
Article XX an empty shell? (Paul de Waart)
1.	Human rights in international trade	109
2.	People(s) at the centre of development	110
3.	Commitments of the Social Summit	112
4.	Linking economic growth to human development	114
4.1	Human development agencies	114
4.1.1	FAO/IFAD	114
4.1.2	WHO	115
4.1.3	UNESCO	115

4.1.4	ILO	116
4.2	Economic growth agencies	117
4.2.1	WMO	117
4.2.2	IMF/World Bank	118
4.2.3	UNCTAD/UNIDO	120
4.2.4	WTO/WIPO	121
5.	GATT's general exception clause	123
5.1	Protection of human life and health	123
5.2	WTO conservation of natural resources	125
6.	Disputes on trade and (human) environment	127
6.1	Disputes on multilateral environmental agreements	128
6.2	Article XX an empty shell?	130
Chapter 7: Development partnerships and development research: from advocacy to action/reflections on method (Konrad Ginther)		133
1.	International law with a human face: a framework of inquiry	133
1.1	Participatory development	134
1.2	The principle of life long learning	136
1.3	New partnership between governments and people	141
2.	The structure of development co-operation	144
2.1	The Arusha structure of development policies dialogues	144
2.2	Constitutional orders and scenarios of participatory development	149
2.3	One model of participation of non-state actors/institutions in democratization	152
2.4	The evolution of development theory	155
3.	Conclusions	156
Chapter 8: International trade and human rights from the perspective of the WTO (Asif Qureshi)		159
1.	WTO's human rights dimension	159
1.1	Trade-related issues	163
1.2	Non-trade issues	165
2.	Legal context	166
2.1	Trade-related norms	167
2.2	Non-trade norms	168

3.	The influence of non-trade considerations in the WTO decision making processes	171
4.	Conclusions	172
PART II TRADE, ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AND RESOURCE MANAGEMENT
Chapter 9:	Rethinking states' rights to promote extra-territorial environmental values (Andre Nollkaemper)	175
1.	Extra-territorial environmental policies	175
2.	Empirical background of claims and counterclaims	178
2.1	The protection of tropical forests	178
2.2	The EC eco-labelling scheme	180
2.3	Protection of animal welfare	181
2.4	Protection of endangered species	182
3.	Compatibility of extra-environmental policies with general international law	184
3.1	The law of extra-territorial jurisdiction	187
3.2	The shield of sovereignty in WTO-law	189
4.	Beyond sovereignty-based barriers to extra-territorial environmental policies: in search of legitimacy	192
4.1	A new effects-doctrine?	192
4.2	The effect of treaties on extra-territorial environmental policies	195
4.3	Extra-territorial environmental policies and affirmative duties	198
5.	Conclusions	201
Chapter 10:	WTO rules supporting environmental protection (Andreas Ziegler)	203
1.	Introduction	203
2.	The development of environmental-related activities before the Uruguay Round	204
3.	Sustainable development in the WTO	205
3.1	The preamble of the Agreement establishing the WTO	206
3.2	Co-operation with environmental interest groups	207
3.2.1	GATT 1994 - principles and concepts	208
3.2.2	'Like Products' and environmental protection	209
3.3	Environmental exceptions	210

3.3.1	General conditions of Article XX	211
3.3.2	The specificities of Article XX (b): 'The Necessity Test' and domestic accompanying measures	214
3.4	Specific aspects under supplementary agreements	215
3.4.1	Agreement on Technical Barriers to Trade	215
3.4.2	The Agreement on the Application of Sanitary and Phytosanitary Measures	216
3.4.3	The Agreement on Subsidies and Countervailing Duties	218
3.4.4	The Agreement on Agriculture	218
3.4.5	The General Agreement on Trade in Services	219
3.4.6	The Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights	220
4.	Overall perspective	221
Chapter 11:	Sustainable development and the 1994 Energy Charter Treaty: between pseudo-action and the management of environmental investment risk (Thomas Waelde)	223
1.	The call for global regulation	223
2.	The 1994 Energy Charter Treaty: a summary	231
3.	Article 19 of the Treaty: overall role and structure	234
3.1	Article 19 of the Treaty: Environmental Aspects	238
3.2	Empty declarations, sound policy advice and/or some legal effect?	240
4.	Defence against environmental risk of foreign investment	245
4.1	Opposition of non-governmental groups	246
4.2	Association with intellectual and moral themes	249
4.3	Specific types of environmental investment risk	250
5.	Managing environment-political risk with the Energy Charter Treaty	255
5.1	Environmentally motivated private actions	257
5.2	Contractual commitments	259
5.3	Non-discrimination and national treatment	261
6.	Prudent approach towards environmental regulation	263
6.1	Considerable element of make-believe	264
6.2	Important arsenal of defensive measures	265
6.3	'Treaty with teeth'	267
6.4	Mobilization of the market place	269

Chapter 12: Evolution and impact of sustainable development in the European Union (Wybe Douma)	271
1. Introduction	271
2. Environmental policy statements	272
3. The EC Treaty after Maastricht	274
4. Public Participation without legal standing?	275
4.1 Public participation according to the Rio Declaration and Agenda 21	276
4.2 Public participation within the European Union	277
4.2.1 Greenpeace v Commission (Case T-585/93)	278
4.2.2 French nuclear tests (Case T-219/95 R)	279
4.3 Suggestions for improvement	280
5. Principles of EC Environmental Policy and Law	282
6. Conclusions	285
Chapter 13: External Relations and the periphery of EU environmental law (Damian Chalmers)	289
1. Introduction	289
2. The external environmental competences of the European Union	290
2.1 Autonomous actions	290
2.1.1 Regulations and directives	291
2.1.2 Trade-related environmental measures	292
2.1.3 Common positions and joint actions	293
2.2 International agreements	294
2.2.1 Implied powers	294
2.2.2 Shared responsibility	296
3. The presence of the European Union	299
3.1 Institutional weakness	299
3.1.1 Marginilisation of the European Parliament	300
3.1.2 Vagaries of the Council Presidency	301
3.1.3 Regionalism versus globalism	302
3.1.4 Lack of institutional imagination	304
4. Conclusion	305

Chapter 14: Integrating environmental concerns into trade relations: the European Union revised General System of Preferences (Esther de Haan)	307
1. Introduction	307
2. Characteristics of the UNCTAD General System of Preferences	309
2.1 The Relationship between GSP and GATT	310
2.2 The revised EU General System of Preferences	312
3. Environmental incentives	315
3.1 The relationship between environmental incentives and UNCTAD	317
3.2 The relationship between environmental incentives and GATT	319
4. Conclusions	323
Chapter 15: Regional integration and protection of the environment: the case of MERCOSUL (Susanna Camargo Vieira)	327
1. Introduction	327
2. Background of MERCOSUL	328
2.1 Introduction to the organization	328
2.2 The legal framework	329
3. Environmental protection in MERCOSUL	331
3.1 Provisions in the constitutional treaties	331
3.2 Individual member countries' participation in environmental treaties or treaties with environmental aspects	332
3.3 The pilot program to conserve the Brazilian rain forest	334
4. Environmental aspects of the European Union/MERCOSUL Interregional Framework Cooperation Agreement	337
4.1 Types of Co-operation	337
4.2 Examples of true co-operation	339
5. Implementation and enforcement of environmental protection in regional integration	340
6. Summary and conclusions	343
Chapter 16: Sustainable development in the APEC (Ruyichi Ida)	345
1. Particularities of the APEC	345
2. Environment before the Osaka Conference	349
2.1 Environment issue before 1992: individual approach	349

2.2	Turning to a comprehensive approach: sustainable development	349
3.	The Osaka Declaration and the Action Agenda	350
3.1	The Osaka Declaration for action	350
3.2	The Osaka Agenda: implementation of the Bogor Declaration	351
4.	Conclusions	354
Chapter 17: Towards sustainable tourism in the wider Caribbean Region: beyond command and control (David Freestone & Neil Gunningham)		357
1.	International legal framework for regulating tourism	357
1.1	Basic framework for obligation	358
1.2	Non-binding instruments	362
2.	National and local level implementation	364
2.1	The failure of voluntarism and the need for intervention	364
2.1.1	Internalising externalities	366
2.1.2	User pays approaches and sustainable tourism development	367
2.1.3	National and local tourism levies	368
2.2	Sustainable planning	372
2.2.1	Applying the polluter pays principle to waste discharges	374
2.2.2	Accreditation, eco-labelling and eco-audit	376
2.2.3	The need for a broader policy mix	377
3.	Action at the regional level	380
3.1	Standard setting	381
3.2	Enforcement at the regional level	383
3.3.	Toward a self-funded infrastructure	384
4.	Conclusions	385
Chapter 18: Reciprocity in international development co-operation: the case of the Netherlands and the 'BBC-countries' (Nico Schrijver)		387
1.	'A voyage of discovery': the 1994 sustainable development treaties between the Netherlands and Bhutan, Costa Rica and Benin	388
2.	Reciprocity, exploring the 'Janus-faced' concept	389
3.	Non-reciprocity: its emergence and decline	392
3.1	Preferential treatment of developing countries	393
3.2	Graduation and integration	394

4.	New trends in the international development dialogue	396
5.	Final Observations and Conclusions	399

PART III INVESTMENT AND FINANCE

Chapter 19: Sustainable development with a human face?		401
	(Paul Peters)
1.	Preface	401
2.	Introduction	402
3.	Specificity of action required	403
4.	Emphasis on greenhouse gases	403
5.	Investment	404
6.	Instruments designed to regulate investment	405
7.	An integrated approach	409
8.	Developments in the OECD	410
9.	Conclusions	410
Chapter 20: Foreign investment and sustainable development		413
	(Surya Subedi)
1.	Introduction	413
2.	Investment and environment regulation	415
2.1	International efforts	416
2.2	National regulation	419
3.	Use of economic instruments	420
4.	An investment code for sustainable development	423
5.	Use of extra-territorial environmental regulation	425
5.1	Liability law	425
5.2	Requirements concerning the disclosure of information and environmental impact assessment	427
6.	Conclusions	428
Chapter 21: Towards a multilateral investment agreement (MAI): the OECD and WTO models and sustainable development		429
	(Peter Muchlinski)
1.	Introduction	429
2.	The MAI proposal	432

2.1	Significant obstacles	433
2.2	Unresolved issues	435
3.	The substantive content of sustainable development standards relevant to an MAI	437
3.1	Investment and technology	438
3.2	Labour and trade	440
3.3	Inclusion of social and environmental standards	441
3.4	Investment agreements	443
3.5	The views of relevant interest groups	445
3.5.1	Multinational enterprises	446
3.5.2	NAFTA	446
3.5.3	Least developed countries	447
3.5.4	Environmental activists	448
4.	Is sustainable development useful to the MAI proposal?	449
 Chapter 22: Fade-away of socialist planned economy: China's participation in the WTO (Yuwen Li)		453
1.	Introduction	453
2.	Historical background	454
2.1	Resumption of membership versus new accession	456
2.2	Qualification as a developing country	458
2.3	Non-discriminatory clauses	459
3.	GATT/WTO principles	460
3.1	Freedom of trade	460
3.2	Non-discrimination	460
3.3	Reciprocity	461
3.4	Transparency and unity	462
4.	Economic and legal reform	463
4.1	Economic reform	463
4.2	Legal reform	465
4.2.1	Foreign trade law	466
4.2.2	Tax law	469
4.2.3	Company law	471
5.	Conclusions	473
5.1	Major implications of WTO membership for China	474
5.2	Major implications for WTO members	476

Chapter 23: Relations of the WTO with other international organizations and NGOs (Wolfgang Benedek)	479
1. The relationship of the WTO with the United Nations	479
1.1 Separation delayed	479
1.2 Continuity of relationship	482
2. Relations between WTO and IMF as well as World Bank	483
2.1 The Marrakesh Declarations	483
2.2 The WTO Agreements with the Fund and the Bank	486
3. Relation of the WTO with other international organization	490
4. Relations of the WTO with NGOs	491
5. Coherence in global economic policymaking as part of globalization	493
Chapter 24: Access to ICSID dispute settlement for locally incorporated companies (Christoph Schreuer)	497
1. Introduction	497
2. Agreement on nationality	498
3. Foreign control	504
3.1 Existence of foreign control	504
3.2 Nationality of control	507
3. Form and extent of control	509
4. Conclusions	512
Chapter 25: The World Bank Group and sustainable development (Gerhard Loibl)	513
1. Introduction	513
2. The World Bank Group and sustainable development	515
3. Institutional responses to 'sustainable development' in the World Bank Group	519
3.1 Institutional changes	519
3.2 Operational policies and procedures	520
3.2.1 Primary statements on environment and social issues	521
3.2.2 Sectoral issues	522
3.2.3 Statements supportive of the environment	524
3.2.4 The World Bank Inspection Panel	526
4. New funding mechanisms for sustainable development	527
4.1 The Global Environmental Facility	527
4.2 Montreal Fund	528

4.3	External Funding	529
4.4	Activities of the IMF in regard to sustainable development	529
5.	Conclusions	531
Chapter 26: Exchange rates and development (Hans Visser)		533
1.	Introduction	533
2.	The exchange rate regime	534
3.	Payments restrictions	537
4.	Liberalization of payments	541
5.	Dual or multiple exchange rates	543
6.	Conclusions	544
Chapter 27: Financing the protection of global environment (Erik Denters)		547
1.	Introduction	547
2.	The call for resources for sustainable development	547
3.	The Tobin tax	549
4.	Arguments against a financial transaction tax	551
5.	The legal environment of currency traders	552
6.	The feasibility of a financial transaction tax	554
7.	Jurisdiction to tax	555
8.	The possibility of channelling through the Bretton Woods institutions?	558
9.	Concluding remarks	560
Index		561