

Nonlinear Optics and Spectroscopy

NICOLAAS BLOEMBERGEN

Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02138

This article is the lecture the author delivered in Stockholm on 8 December 1981 when he received the Nobel Prize in Physics, which he shared with Kai M. Siegbahn and Arthur L. Schawlow. As the article appeared in Science 216, 1057–1064 (4 June 1982), it is not reproduced here.