

Review of: "Online learning during the COVID-19 pandemic, lessons learned and what's next?"

Manish Dadhich¹

¹ Sir Padampat Singhanian University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Dear Prof. Editor

I am writing to express my sincere gratitude for selecting me to review the manuscript for Online learning during the COVID-19 pandemic, lessons learned and what's next?. I am honored to be chosen as a reviewer for this manuscript and will do my utmost to provide a thorough and constructive review to refine the work further. I am excited about the opportunity to contribute to the academic community by providing feedback and insights on this work. It is a privilege to be a part of the scholarly review process, and I look forward to supporting academic excellence and the authors of the manuscript to help ensure that this work meets the high standards of academic excellence.

The manuscript is interesting but cannot be published in its current form.

1. The present manuscript has a weak structure, and the authors cannot support the conceptual framework with the support of online learning and emergency shift to e-learning.
2. While interesting, the theoretical contribution of your manuscript is narrowly defined.
3. The description of various components of the research paper should be mentioned at the end of the introduction.
4. The future scope and limitations should be incorporated further.
5. The average credibility of the used sources and references is low and old.
6. Describe the difference between this study concerning other studies in conclusion.
7. Conclusion is needed to strengthen.
8. The language of the paper needs careful proof editing. The paper should be rejected if the authors are unaware of the revision and language.