

Review of: "Pela Gandong and Christian Education in Culture and Society Practices"

Michael Armand Canilao¹

¹ University of the Philippines Manila

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The manuscript still needs another pass for copyediting to address minor misspellings, sentence and paragraph structure and grammar (i.e., what is Oease? Oasis?).

The article utilizes primary, classic sociology and anthropology even history theories (Malinowski, Weber, Toynbee). Perhaps also (when time permits) attempt to trace the academic discussions that followed these early theories (secondary sources that critique and also “revitalize” them so to speak).

Include more in-text citation in some parts that are continuous sentence narratives- some may need to be anchored to relevant sources.

Consider Pela Gandong as IKSP Indigenous Knowledge Systems and Practices also. In this light the revitalization is towards the original worldview before external influences (colonization, christianization).