

Supporting Information for:

Smartphone Fluorescence Spectroscopy

*Hojeong Yu,<sup>1</sup> Yafang Tan,<sup>1</sup> and Brian T. Cunningham*<sup>1,2</sup>*

<sup>1</sup>Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering, Micro and Nanotechnology Laboratory, University of Illinois at Urbana–Champaign, 208 North Wright Street, Urbana, Illinois 61801, United States

<sup>2</sup>Department of Bioengineering, Micro and Nanotechnology Laboratory, University of Illinois at Urbana–Champaign, 208 North Wright Street, Urbana, Illinois 61801, United States

Figure S1. The mechanical dimensions of the optical cradle. The cradle is primarily divided into two distinct parts: the smartphone-holding section and the optical components section. Widths ( $w_1$  and  $w_2$ ) and lengths ( $l_1$ ,  $l_2$ ,  $l_3$ , and  $l_4$ ) are specified in the drawing.