

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-19098-5 - Space and Time in Ancient Greek Narrative

Alex C. Purves

Frontmatter

More information

---

SPACE AND TIME IN ANCIENT GREEK NARRATIVE

In this wide-ranging survey of ancient Greek narrative from archaic epic to classical prose, Alex C. Purves shows how stories unfold in space as well as in time. She traces a shift in authorial perspective, from a godlike overview to the more focused outlook of human beings caught up in a developing plot, inspired by advances in cartography, travel, and geometry. Her analysis of the temporal and spatial dimensions of ancient narrative leads to new interpretations of important texts by Homer, Herodotus, and Xenophon, among others, showing previously unnoticed connections between epic and prose. Drawing on the methods of classical philology, narrative theory, and cultural geography, Purves recovers a poetics of spatial representation that lies at the core of the Greeks' conception of their plots.

Alex C. Purves is assistant professor of classics at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-19098-5 - Space and Time in Ancient Greek Narrative

Alex C. Purves

Frontmatter

More information

---

SPACE AND TIME IN ANCIENT GREEK NARRATIVE

ALEX C. PURVES

University of California, Los Angeles

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-19098-5 - Space and Time in Ancient Greek Narrative

Alex C. Purves

Frontmatter

More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town, Singapore,
São Paulo, Delhi, Dubai, Tokyo

Cambridge University Press

32 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10013-2473, USA

www.cambridge.orgInformation on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521190985

© Alex C. Purves 2010

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2010

Printed in the United States of America

A catalog record for this publication is available from the British Library.Library of Congress Cataloging in Publication data

Purves, Alex C., 1972–

Space and time in ancient Greek narrative / Alex C. Purves.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-0-521-19098-5 (hardback)

1. Geography in literature. 2. Space and time in literature. 3. Greek literature – History and criticism. I. Title.

PA3015.G44.P87 2010

880.9'32-dc22 2009031382

ISBN 978-0-521-19098-5 Hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party Internet Web sites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such Web sites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-19098-5 - Space and Time in Ancient Greek Narrative

Alex C. Purves

Frontmatter

More information

---

For Lionel and Orlando

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	page ix
Introduction: The Perfect Surveyor . . . . .	I
1. The Eusynoptic Iliad : Visualizing Space and Movement in the Poem . . . . .	24
2. Paths and Measures: Epic Space and the Odyssey . . . . .	65
3. The World in the Hand: Anaximander, Pherecydes, and the Invention of Cartography . . .	97
4. Map and Narrative: Herodotus's Histories . . . . .	118
5. Losing the Way Home: Xenophon's Anabasis . . . . .	159
6. Finding (Things at) Home: Xenophon's Oeconomicus . . . . .	196
Bibliography	235
General Index	257
Index Locorum	269

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-19098-5 - Space and Time in Ancient Greek Narrative

Alex C. Purves

Frontmatter

More information

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

THE IDEAS IN THIS BOOK FIRST TOOK SHAPE IN A DISSERTATION WRITTEN in the Department of Classics at the University of Pennsylvania, and it is a great pleasure to have the opportunity to thank the many people who supported and guided me during my time there. I owe an immeasurable debt to two people at Penn in particular, the extent of whose influence on my thinking no map or catalogue could encompass. My advisor, Ralph Rosen, has from the very beginning encouraged and inspired me. His clarity, mental agility, and imaginative breadth have informed every step of this project, and are matched only by his friendship and deep concern for his students. No less profound is the effect that Sheila Murnaghan has had on my work and my approach to Classical literature in general. My discussions with her have always been about possibilities and openings, about where ideas can go and the importance of following them through, and her insights can be found everywhere in this book.

The writing of this book was supported by a summer stipend from the National Endowment for the Humanities, two UCLA Junior Faculty Development Awards, and fellowships from the American Council of Learned Societies and the Center for Hellenic Studies. I am extremely grateful to these institutions for their support. My year at the Center for Hellenic Studies, under the generous guidance of Gregory Nagy, was an invaluable experience.

My colleagues at UCLA have all provided critical support and encouragement in the writing of this book. I thank them all collectively and wish to acknowledge in particular Ann Bergren, who read the book in its entirety in its early stages and brought to it her brilliant ability to think about literature in terms of space; Shane Butler, who helped me see the way out of a particularly difficult chapter with his characteristic

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-19098-5 - Space and Time in Ancient Greek Narrative

Alex C. Purves

Frontmatter

More information

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

imagination and acuity; and Sander Goldberg, for his calm advice and encouragement. Mario Telò generously read through the entire manuscript more than once, and offered wonderful suggestions for its improvement. His expertise and, even more, his enthusiasm are what enabled me to round the last turning post and finally hold the end in sight. Finally, I offer my deep gratitude to Kathryn Morgan, for her friendship, support, and the many conversations we have shared together on the subjects in this book and so many others.

Several other scholars and friends have taken the time to read chapters of this work and offer comments, or patiently to discuss ideas when they were in their most inchoate stages. For this I thank Annetta Alexandridis, Kenneth Berger, Timothy Bewes, Mark Buchan, Stuart Burroughs, Michelle Clayton, John Dillery, Anne Duncan, Jennifer Ebbeler, Joseph Farrell, Ann Kuttner, Sophie Lalanne, James Leshner, Daniel McLean, Richard Martin, Aislinn Melchior, Melissa Mueller, James Porter, Peter Struck, William Thalmann, Amanda Wilcox, and Nancy Worman. Their suggestions, advice, and support have been a great resource to me at various stages along the way. I also wish to extend my gratitude to Emily Rush and Emily Beugelmans for providing me with superb research assistance in the later stages of the book, and to Sherrylyn Branchaw for her assistance with the index. Thanks are also due to my editor at Cambridge University Press, Beatrice Rehl, for her patience and support, and to my production and copy editor, Luane Hutchinson, whose kindness and efficiency were so crucial in the final stages.

Karen Bassi not only helped me with an early draft of Chapter 1, but also – as one of my readers for the Press – provided me with detailed and sophisticated comments on the manuscript, which had a transformative effect on my approach to the project and were instrumental in significantly improving the book. The two other (anonymous) readers also offered thoughtful and timely guidance about how to realize this book's potential. I am extremely grateful to all three.

My parents, James and Elizabeth Purves, have always been a great source of support and inspiration to me, and it makes me happy that this book has, in its own way, grown out of a fascination with my father's approach to space and my mother's to books. I dedicate this work to my husband, Lionel Popkin, and my son, Orlando. I cannot imagine having written it without Lionel's love and support, and without the benefit of our ongoing conversations on how to capture the movement of a figure through space. Thanks to Orlando for his sense of humor

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-19098-5 - Space and Time in Ancient Greek Narrative

Alex C. Purves

Frontmatter

More information

---

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

and the sleepless nights, which I tell myself must have led to moments of supernatural lucidity.

I am grateful to the editor of Arethusa for permission to reproduce within Chapter 2 material previously published in volume 39 (2006). Translations are my own unless otherwise noted. Citations of ancient authors are taken from the Oxford Classical Texts unless otherwise noted. Abbreviations conform to those in the Oxford Classical Dictionary (3rd edition).