ABSTRACT

The need for new standards has arisen in Florida public libraries as a result of the library profession's shift from quantitative, input-based standards to qualitative, output-based standards to measure library performance and excellence. The standards in this document were developed after over 100 participants identified subjects to be addressed and developed recommendations and submitted them to the Standards Working Committee. The final standards are organized in the following broad categories: (1) governance, leadership and funding; (2) personnel; (3) access; (4) materials and collections; (5) services; (6) facilities; (7) cooperation and resource sharing; and (8) community relations. In each section there is an objective defined, addressing the purpose of the standards for the topic area. The standard appears in bold type, followed by a checklist that contains a number of indicators a library can use for self-assessment. Each section includes a list of critical resources. Four appendixes provide supplemental information about the working committee, recommended salaries, a glossary, and an annotated bibliography of 65 sources. (SLD)

INTRODUCTION

In 1993, the Florida Library Association submitted an LSCA grant proposal to the State Library of Florida to request funding to support the development of revised standards for Florida's public libraries. The need for new standards had arisen as a result of the library profession's shift from quantitative, input-based standards to qualitative, output-based standards to measure library performance and excellence.

Recognizing the importance of broad participation in the standards development process, the Florida Library Association appointed a Standards Working Committee consisting of public library directors, governing board representatives, library staff, library educators and other interested library users to create new library standards. In addition, the Association engaged the services of Library Development Solutions, a New Jersey-based consulting firm, to assist in the compilation of the standards.

The Florida Library Association and public library community adopted the following principles to guide the standards development process:

- Active involvement of the library community in every step of the decision making process through public hearings and other discussion forums.
- Standards which contain both qualitative and quantitative measures designed to assess current library performance.
- Standards which are focused on library users and their needs for service.
- Standards which are relevant to libraries of all sizes.
- Standards which reflect the importance of technology in providing library service and stress the need for greater cooperation and resource sharing.

Methodology

The standards contained in this document were developed over a six-month period. Ideas for the type of standards needed for Florida libraries were gathered during the 1993 Public Library Director's meeting sponsored by the State Library of Florida. Over 100 participants spent 1½ days identifying subjects to be addressed in the Standards document and developing specific recommendations to be considered by the Standards Working Committee as they developed their document.

The Standards Working Committee considered the input from the Public Library Director's meeting, reviewed standards from other states and professional associations, surveyed the FLA Public Library Caucus and developed a basic framework for the proposed standards. Individual committee members forwarded their recommendations to Library Development Solutions for inclusion in the document. A working draft of the standards was presented to the Committee in January 1994. The Committee then met several times to discuss the draft and provided the consultants with guidance for future revisions.

A broad outline of the proposed standards was presented to attendees of the Florida Library Association Annual Conference in May 1994. Meeting participants responded positively to the Committee's proposals, offered suggestions for improving the usefulness of the standards to public library staff, and provided additional resources for the Committee's consideration.

Standards Committee members shared subsequent drafts of the standards with members of their staff, local governing boards and government administrators to obtain additional input prior to the formal presentation of the proposed standards at the 1994 Public Library Directors Conference.

Standards for Florida Public Libraries

At the November 1994 Public Library Directors Conference, Members of the Standards Committee held a hearing to identify concerns regarding the proposed draft and solicit comments for suggested changes and improvements. Information obtained at the hearing was supplemented by data gathered in a brief survey that was distributed to all conference participants.

Acknowledgements

The Florida Library Association acknowledges the important role the State Library of Florida has played in the standards development process. The State Library has provided grant funds to support this effort, made their staff expertise readily available to the Standards Working Committee and the project consultants and has provided the Committee with a forum for presenting their recommendations to the public library community. The Standards Committee's job was made easier because of some of the pioneering efforts of other states in the area of standards development. The Committee would also like to acknowledge the following standards which served as models for many of the ideas contained in this document:

- Standards for Connecticut Principal Public Libraries
- In Service to Iowa: Public Library Measures of Quality
- Standards for Public Library Service in Ohio
- Planning for Excellence, Virginia State Library and Archives
- Wisconsin Public Library Standards

It is also essential to acknowledge the importance of the Florida Library Association's 1985 Standards and Guidelines for Florida Public Library Services. Many of the recommendations in this document were retained as relevant standards for this revision.

The process used to develop the standards, a consensus-based approach, has proved to be an invaluable tool in developing standards which are pertinent and relevant to present-day Florida public library services. Special thanks to all the people who took the time to review and comment on drafts of this document.

SERVICE LEVELS

Several standards include quantitative recommendations for the recommended volumes per capita, number of periodical subscriptions per 1,000 population, hours open, and size of facility. Although the national trend has been to move away from recommending specific numbers in each of these areas, Florida librarians feel that recommendations in this area assist them in increasing the understanding of local officials about the value of expenditures for library services. To arrive at a number that had some meaning for Florida libraries the Standards Committee reviewed several years of statistical data gathered about the State's public libraries by the State Library of Florida.

To reflect the reality of public library service in Florida, the Committee suggests that libraries identify targets for volumes per capita, periodical subscriptions per capita, professional staff per capita by comparing themselves to other libraries serving similar sized populations as defined in the annual Florida Library Directory and Statistics. The Committee recommends that each individual library examine its mission, goals and selected public library roles as well as individual community needs to determine the level of service it wants to provide. Three levels of service have been identified for purposes of these standards and are defined below: basic, full and comprehensive.

Basic: If a library chooses to provide basic service it will ensure, on an annual basis beginning with a review of the 1994 Florida Library Statistics, that its expenditures per capita for library materials, the number of volumes owned per capita, the number of periodical subscriptions per 1,000, and the number of professional staff are between the 25th to 50th percentile for its population group.

Full: If a library chooses to become a full service library, it will ensure on an annual basis beginning with a review of the 1994 Florida Library Statistics, that its expenditures per capita for library materials, the number of volumes owned per capita, the number of periodical subscriptions per 1,000, and the number of professional staff are between the 50th and 75th percentile for its population group.

Comprehensive: If a library chooses to become a comprehensive service library, it will ensure on an annual basis beginning with a review of the 1994 Florida Library Statistics, that its expenditures per capita for library materials, the number of volumes owned per capita, the number of periodical subscriptions per 1,000, and the number of professional staff are between the 75th and 100th percentile for its population group.

HOW TO USE THESE STANDARDS

The standards that appear in this document are intended to be used by library directors, staff, and governing boards to improve the quality of library service to Florida residents. The Standards Working Committee recognizes that some libraries may not initially meet the standards while others may have already met them and have exceeded them. The Committee expects that those libraries that do not yet meet the standards will work diligently to obtain funds and other resources necessary to meet the level of excellence described in the standard. Libraries that meet or exceed the standards are encouraged to maintain their high level of service and are invited to develop the models that will lead to new standards of excellence for subsequent revisions of the standards.

The standards are organized in the following broad categories:

- Governance
- Leadership and Funding
- Personnel
- Access
- Materials and Collections
- Services
- Facilities
- Cooperation and Resource Sharing
- Community Relations

In each section of the document there is an objective which addresses the purpose of standards for the topic area under consideration. The standard appears in bold type and is followed by a checklist which contains a number of indicators which a library can use for self assessment. A list of critical resources appears at the end of each section. Full bibliographic citations for these resources are included in the bibliography. The State Library of Florida can provide interlibrary loan of these materials to any library that needs additional information and can be consulted for information on a specific topic area.

Standards for Florida Public Libraries

Individual library compliance with the standards is completely voluntary. The Florida Library Association has taken responsibility for the development of these standards as a service to its members. The Association encourages individual libraries to use the standards as part of their overall planning process as a means to assess their own library's performance and effectiveness.

APPENDIX B -
Minimum Recommended Salary

FOR BEGINNING LEVEL STAFF WITH A MASTERS DEGREE FROM AN ALA LIBRARY PROGRAM

Members of the Standards Working Committee discussed the pros and cons of including a minimum salary recommendation as part of the standards document and agreed that there was some value to including this recommendation for discussion and consideration by the library community. However, developing a single recommended salary level for library directors, beginning level professional librarians and support staff employed in Florida's public libraries proved to be a difficult task for the Committee. After reviewing data regarding library directors' salaries, the Committee decided it was not appropriate to make a recommendation for this category of employees and instead decided to leave that to the discretion of the local governing authority. Because there was a lack of data and inconsistency from library to library with regard to support staff, the Committee decided not to address minimum salary recommendation for this group either. Instead, the Committee focused its attention on developing a recommended salary level for the beginning level position for staff with an MLS (Masters degree from an ALA degree for an ALA library program).

The Committee offers this minimum salary recommendation as a guide for Florida's public libraries and recommends that the Florida Library Association establish an ongoing salary review committee to review the recommended salary level on an annual basis. The beginning level MLS salary should be adjusted annually on July 1 and increased to reflect increases in the cost of living based on the annual Consumer Price Index for the Miami/South Florida area.

To determine a salary recommendation for the basic level MLS, the Committee reviewed MLS salaries for the past four years as reported in the State Library's public library statistics. The Committee considered a tiered structure for the MLS salary recommendation to compensate for economic disparities within the state and varying size of libraries but decided instead to recommend a single beginning level salary. Based on the information reviewed in the public library statistics, consideration of beginning level salaries paid in other neighboring states the Committee recommends that as of July 1, 1995 a beginning level MLS salary be set at a minimum of $25,000.
