THE CAMBRIDGE HISTORY OF AFRICAN AMERICAN LITERATURE

The first major twenty-first-century history of four hundred years of black writing, The Cambridge History of African American Literature presents a comprehensive overview of the literary traditions, oral and print, of African-descended peoples in the United States. Expert contributors, drawn from the United States and beyond, emphasize the dual nature of each text discussed as a work of art created by an individual and as a response to unfolding events in American cultural, political, and social history. Unprecedented in scope, sophistication, and accessibility, the volume draws together current scholarship in the field. It also looks ahead to suggest new approaches, new areas of study, and as yet undervalued writers and works. The Cambridge History of African American Literature is a major achievement both as a work of reference and as a compelling narrative and will remain essential reading for scholars and students in years to come.

MARYEMMA GRAHAM is a Professor of English at the University of Kansas, Lawrence. She founded, and has directed the Project on the History of Black Writing for over twenty-five years. Her eight books include The Cambridge Companion to the African American Novel (2004) and Fields Watered with Blood (2001). She is currently completing The House Where My Soul Lives: The Life of Margaret Walker (forthcoming). A former John Hope Franklin Fellow at the National Humanities Center (2005–6) and recipient of numerous awards and federal program grants, Graham has also held previous fellowships from the American Council of Learned Societies, the Ford and Mellon Foundations, the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture, the Smithsonian Institution, and the American Antiquarian Society.

JERRY W. WARD, JR. is a Professor of English at Dillard University, New Orleans. His recent published work includes The Katrina Papers: A Journal of Trauma and Recovery (2008) and (as co-editor) The Richard Wright Encyclopedia (2008). Among his awards are a Kent Fellowship (1975–77), Mississippi Humanities Council Public Humanities Scholar Award (1997), Fellowship at the National Humanities Center (1999–2000), Darwin T. Turner Award of Excellence (2000), and induction into the International Literary Hall of Fame for Writers of African Descent (2001).

Acknowledgments

The Cambridge History of African American Literature owes to the following persons at the University of Kansas more than the usual statement of “grateful appreciation.” Sarah Arbuthnot and CLAS Digital Media Services (Pam LeRow, Paula Courtney) not only are efficient, caring, and professional, but have made the preparation of this volume an exciting collaborative process, especially during a period of significant challenges. They never ceased to renew our energies, believing, like us, that we were doing important and necessary work for students, readers, teachers, and scholars.

We remain eternally grateful to all of our authors for the highest degree of dedication to this project, for sticking with a process that took longer than anticipated, for working furiously and laboriously to meet changing deadlines and supplying missing details at every turn, for sacrificing much-needed family time during holidays, and for putting aside other, certainly more lucrative opportunities for publication of their own work. Their reward, we hope, is reflected in the quality of this volume and the expanded readership for African American literature in the twenty-first century.

Finally, the editors wish to thank Ray Ryan for his incredible patience, for unwavering commitment to the project, and for his confidence in us. He knew, even when we did not, that this book would get done in spite of it all and that we were the right people to do it.
