
The Global Remapping of American Literature

Paul Giles

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS

PRINCETON AND OXFORD

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: The Deterritorialization of American Literature	1
Part One: Temporal Latitudes
1 Augustan American Literature: An Aesthetics of Extravagance	29
Restoration Legacies: Cook and Byrd	29
The Plantation Epic: Magnalia Christi Americana	42
New World Topographies: Wheatley, Dwight, Alsop	55
2 Medieval American Literature: Antebellum Narratives and the “Map of the Infinite”	70
Emerson, Longfellow, and the Longue Durée	70
“Medieval” Mound Builders and the Archaeological Imagination	86
Hawthorne, Melville, and the Question of Genealogy	97
Part Two: The Boundaries of the Nation
3 The Arcs of Modernism: Geography as Allegory	111
Postbellum Cartographies: William Dean Howells	111
Ethnic Palimpsests, National Standards	120
“Description without Place”: Stevens, Stein, and Modernist Geographies	125
4 Suburb, Network, Homeland: National Space and the Rhetoric of Broadcasting	141
“Voice of America”: Roth, Morrison, DeLillo	141
Lost in Space: John Updike	154
The MTV Generation: Wallace and Eggers	161
Part Three: Spatial Longitudes
5 Hemispheric Parallax: South America and the American South	183
Rotating Perspectives: Bartram, Simms, Martí	183
Regionalism and Pseudo-geography: Hurston and Bishop	199
Mississippi Vulgate: Faulkner and Barthelme	212

6	Metaregionalism: The Global Pacific Northwest	223
	Reversible Coordinates: The Epistemology of Space	223
	Orient and Orientation: Snyder, Le Guin, Brautigan	232
	Virtual Canadas: Gibson and Coupland	242
	Conclusion: American Literature and the Question of Circumference	255
	Works Cited	269
	Index	305