

Contents

|                                                                                                                                                                                       |           |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| Preface .....                                                                                                                                                                  | v  |
| The WBK method applied to the reflection-transmissionby a depth-varying random distribution of cylinders in a fluidslab-like region.....                             | 1  |
| J.-M. Conoir, S. Robert, A. El Mouhtadi, F. Luppé                                                                                                                              |           |
| Advances in ultrasonic testing of autenitic stainless steel welds.Towards a 3-d description of the material including attenuationand optimisation by inversion ..... | 15 |
| J. Moysan, C. Gueudre, M.-A. Ploix, G. Corneloup, P. Guy, B. Chassignole                                                                                                       |           |
| Imaging of defects in autenitic steel welds using an ultrasonic array .....                                                                                                    | 25 |
| G. Connolly, M. Lowe, S. Roklin, A. Temple                                                                                                                                     |           |
| Material and mechanical aspects of bonded joints .....                                                                                                                         | 39 |
| M. Shanahan                                                                                                                                                                    |           |
| The causal differential scattering approach to calculating the effectiveproperties of random composite materials with a particle size distribution..                      | 49 |
| A. Young, A. Mulholland, R. O'Leary                                                                                                                                            |           |
| Modeling of scattering of ultrasounds by flaws for NDT .....                                                                                                                   | 61 |
| M. Darmon, N. Leymarie, S. Chatillon, S. Mahaut                                                                                                                                |           |
| Finite element computation of leaky modes in stratified waveguides .....                                                                                                       | 73 |
| A.-S. Bonnet-Bendhia, B. Goursaud, C. Hazard, A. Pietro                                                                                                                        |           |
| Ultrasonic bulk wave propagation in concentrated heterogeneous slurries...                                                                                                     | 87 |
| R. Challis, A. Holmes, V. Pinfield                                                                                                                                             |           |

|                                                                                                                           |            |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Dynamics of elastic bodies connected by a thin adhesive layer .....                                                | 99  |
| C. Licht, F. Lebon, A. Léger                                                                                       |            |
| Acoustic wave attenuation in a rough-walled waveguide filled with a dissipative fluid .....                        | 111 |
| T. Valier-Brasier, C. Potel, M. Bruneau, C. Depollier                                                              |            |
| Some advances towards a better understanding of wave propagation in civil engineering multi-wire strand .....      | 123 |
| L. Laguerre, F. Treyssède                                                                                          |            |
| A numerical method for the simulation of NDT experiments in an elastic waveguide .....                             | 137 |
| V. Baronian, A.-S. Bonnet-Bendhia, A. Lhemery, E. Luneville                                                        |            |
| Finite element for a beam system with nonlinear contact under periodic excitation .....                            | 149 |
| H. Hazim, B. Rousselet                                                                                             |            |
| Nonlinear acoustic fast and slow dynamics of damaged composite materials : correlation with acoustic emission..... | 161 |
| M. Bentahar, A. Marec, R. El Guerjouma, J.H. Thomas                                                                |            |
| Asymptotic expansions of vibrations with small unilateral contact .....                                            | 173 |
| S. Junca, B. Rousselet                                                                                             |            |
| Propagation of compressional elastic waves through a 1-d medium with contact nonlinearities.....                   | 183 |
| B. Lombard, J. Piraux                                                                                              |            |
| 3-d Finite element simulations of an air-coupled ultrasonic NDT system ....                                        | 195 |
| W. Ke, M. Castaings, C. Bacon                                                                                      |            |
| The reverse time migration technique coupled with finite element methods .....                                     | 207 |
| C. Baldassari, H. Barucq, H. Calandra, B. Denel, J. Diaz                                                           |            |
| Modelling of corner echo ultrasonic inspection with bulk and creeping waves.....                                   | 217 |
| G. Huet, M. Darmon, A. Lhémy, S. Mahaut                                                                            |            |

|                                                                                                                                                           |            |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Attenuation of Lamb waves in the vicinity of a forbidden band in a phononic crystal .....                                                          | 227 |
| M. Bavencoffe, A.-C. Hladky-Hennion, B. Morvan, J.-L. Izbicki                                                                                      |            |
| 3-d orthogonality relations for the surface waves and the far field evaluation in viscoelastic layered solids with or without fluid loading .....  | 237 |
| D. D. Zakharov                                                                                                                                     |            |
| Damage detection in foam core sandwich structures using guided waves....                                                                           | 251 |
| N. Terrien, D. Osmont                                                                                                                              |            |
| Sensitivity of the guided waves to the adhesion of lap joints : Finite elements modeling and experimental investigations.....                      | 261 |
| H. Lourme, B. Hosten, P. Brassier                                                                                                                  |            |
| Guided waves in empty and filled pipes with optimized magnetostrictive transduction .....                                                          | 271 |
| A. Phang, R. Challis                                                                                                                               |            |
| Piezoelectric material characterization by acoustic methods .....                                                                                  | 283 |
| E. Le Clezio, T. Delaunay, M. Lam, G. Feuillard                                                                                                    |            |
| Ultrasound characterization of aggregated red blood cells : towards in vivo application .....                                               | 293 |
| E. Franceschini, F. Yu, G. Cloutier                                                                                                                |            |
| A 3-d semi-analytical model to predict the behavior of ultrasonic bounded beam traveling in cylindrical solid bar embedded in a solid matrix ..... | 303 |
| S. Yaacoubi, L. Laguerre, E. Ducasse, M. Deschamps                                                                                                 |            |
| Comparison between a multiple scattering method and direct numerical simulations for elastic wave propagation in concrete .....                    | 317 |
| M. Chekroun, L. Le Marec, B. Lombard, J. Piraux, O. Abraham                                                                                        |            |
| Investigation of a novel polymer foam material for air coupled ultrasonic transducer applications.....                                             | 329 |
| L. Satyanarayan, J.-M. Vander Weide, N.-F. Declercq, Y. Berthelot                                                                                  |            |

|                                                                                                                                                                                 |            |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Dual signal processing approach for Lamb wave analysis.....                                                                                                              | 341 |
| J. Assaad, S. Grondel, F. El Yaoubi, E. Moulin, C. Delebarre                                                                                                             |            |
| Structural health monitoring of bonded composite patches using Lamb waves.....                                                                                           | 355 |
| B. Chapuis, N. Terrien, D. Royer, A. Déom                                                                                                                                |            |
| Simulation of structural noise and attenuation occurring in ultrasonic NDT of polycrystalline materials .....                                                            | 365 |
| V. Dorval, F. Jenson, G. Corneloup, J. Moysan                                                                                                                            |            |
| Ultrasonic array reconstruction methods for the localization and the characterization of defects in complex NDT configurations .....                                     | 377 |
| A. Fidahoussen, P. Calmon, M. Lambert                                                                                                                                    |            |
| Ultrasonic nonlinear parameter measurement : critical investigation of the instrumentation.....                                                                          | 387 |
| L. Haumesser, J. Fortineau, D. Parenthoine, T. Goursolle, F. Vander Meulen                                                                                               |            |
| Investigation of damage mechanisms of composite materials : multivariable analysis based on temporal and wavelet features extracted from acoustic emission signals ..... | 399 |
| A. Marec, J.-H. Thomas, R. El Guerjouma, R. Berbaoui                                                                                                                     |            |
| Propagation of elastic waves in a fluid-loades anisotropic functionally graded waveguide : application to ultrasound characterization of cortical bone.....              | 411 |
| C. Baron, S. Naili                                                                                                                                                       |            |
| Coherent wave propagation in solids containing spatially varying distributions of finite-size cracks .....                                                               | 423 |
| C. Aristégui, M. Caleap, O. Poncelet, A.-L. Shuvalov, Y.-C. Angel                                                                                                        |            |