

Understanding the Crisis in Greece

From Boom to Bust

Michael Mitsopoulos

and

Theodore Pelagidis

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

List of Figures	xi
Part I
1 Introduction	3
2 Vikings in Greece: Rents, the Design of the Greek Political System and the Blockage of Reforms	6
2.1 Introduction	6
2.2 Description of the players of the game	7
2.3 Powerful interest groups as rent-seeking "Vikings" in Greece	8
2.4 Rationally ignorant and misinformed voters who are afraid of reform	10
2.5 The role of the media as an obstacle to reform	14
2.6 The administration as a prize for the interest groups	15
2.7 The failure of the mandate holders	16
2.8 Conclusion	20
References	22
3 Corruption, Policy Inadequacy and the Greek Constitution	24
3.1 Introduction	24
3.2 Literature survey	26
3.3 Mandate holders and their motive to get corrupted	30
3.4 Democracy: The strength of the government, minorities and the separation of powers	32
3.5 Minorities: Potential corruptors and protectors of democracy	34
3.6 The practice of creating strong governments with sufficient separation of powers	37
3.7 Proposals for constitutional reform in Greece	48
3.8 Conclusion	51
References	52

4 Efficiency and Quality of Justice in Greece	55
4.1 Introduction	55
4.2 Measures of the judiciary's efficiency	57
4.3 Analysis of an indirect measure of the time required to dispose justice in Greece	59
4.4 Appeals court decisions – case facts as a direct proxy for the time needed to dispose justice in Greece	63
4.5 European Court of Human Rights decisions regarding delays in Greek courts	68
4.6 Time needed to dispose cases and resources	71
4.7 The increase in the appellate rate	74
4.8 The cost of using official arbitration	76
4.9 Rents and the judiciary: The Greek case of demand and supply for legal services	77
4.10 Simplifying procedures and strengthening accountability	84
4.11 Preserving the independence of the judiciary during reform	102
4.12 Conclusions	103
References	104

Part II

5 Strong Growth and Weak Institutions: The Greek Paradox Reconsidered	109
5.1 Introduction	109
5.2 Greece: Rapid growth over the past years	111
5.3 Low competitiveness combined with a weak labor market	121
5.3.1 Low competitiveness	121
5.3.2 A weak labor market	136
5.4 Taxation and labor market paradoxes	144
5.4.1 Facts on personal income taxation	144
5.4.2 A summary of the facts on personal income taxation	160
5.4.3 Paradoxes of the Greek labor market explained	163

5.5	Private sector salaried employment attributes, corporate taxation and corporate profitability	165
5.5.1	Private sector salaried employment, employer size and the relative attractiveness of public sector employment	165
5.5.2	Corporate income tax contribution in Greece	174
5.5.3	Profitability of Greek companies	182
5.6	The current crisis and the Greek financial system	187
5.7	Certain basic parameters of the Greek pension system	198
5.8	Main parameters of the Greek public finances	206
5.9	The examples of Finland and Ireland and how they can be an example for Greece	214
5.10	Conclusions	219
Appendix 1 Road Transport in Greece and Government Intervention		227
A1.1	An example of how the reform debate in Greece does not focus on issues that are crucially related to the low competitiveness of the country	227
Appendix 2 Shop Opening Hours in Greece		231
A2.1	An example of how consumer interests are not a consideration in reform debates when one has to deregulate, rather than regulate	231
Appendix 3 Basic Examples of Details that Degrade the Greek Business Environment		236
A3.1	Tax on raised capital	236
A3.1.1	The situation in Greece	236
A3.1.2	European trends	236
A3.2	Publications in the Government Gazette	236
A3.2.1	The situation in Greece	236
A3.2.2	European trends	237
A3.3	Multiple notifications of a new hiring	237
A3.3.1	The situation in Greece	237
A3.3.2	European trends	238
A3.4	Taxing the transfer of private limited companies	238
A3.4.1	The situation in Greece	238
A3.4.2	European trends	238

A3.5	Regulatory impact assessment	238
A3.5.1	The situation in Greece	238
A3.5.2	European trends	239
A3.6	Certificate of origin for exports	239
A3.6.1	The situation in Greece	239
A3.6.2	European trends	240
	References for Chapter 5 and Appendices	241
	Notes	246
	Index	249